

Arts and Humanities are often looked down upon in our society. There is a stigma around opting for Arts and Humanities. Because of this many students end up taking courses and career paths that they don't wish to. This is the reason we are seeing many people being disinterested & frustrated with their jobs or changing their career paths mid way. Many students also change their career path after completing Grads or at times even after their Masters. What's the point of wasting so much time, money and effort in a career you won't pursue. But the fact is we can't continue in a field we don't connect with or dislike. But when students realize their mistake it's too late and the only thing students are left with is regret. So, choose your career path wisely. Here are some best career options for arts and humanity students after 12th.
